Chester Arthur, of New York, was nominated for Vice-President, on the first ballot.

Judicial Convention Called.

It is ordered by the undersigned Democratic Central Committee of the 26th Judicial circuit of Missouri, that a convention of delegates chosen by the Democratic voters of the various counties of said circuit be held at the court house in the town of Ironton, on Monday, the 28th day of June, 1880, at 2:30 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of nomieach county in such circuit shall be entitled to one delegate and an additional delegate for every 300 votes cast therein for Samuel J. Tilden in 1876, and for a fraction of 150 and upwards but less Committee.

Chicago may hereafter be called the Washington of the Republican party. And yet that party has plenty of dirty linen still unwashed.

If this country can survive one solid week of Republican Convention, we need have no fears of its failing to celebrate its second Centennial. No Republic was ever put to so great a strain Republicans do not believe in the 'unit rule"-Oh, no!-except when applied to electoral commissions and returning boards. Then the party stands as a unit for the protection of the little thieves who steal a Presidency for it.

C. D. Yancey; of Piedmont, and J. P. Walker, of Dexter, were chosen delegates to represent the Fourth District in the Cincinnati convention. The selection is good, and we are certain the best interest of the party will be served through them.

When a party can muster only thirteen strong at a State Convention, its wisest plan is to put up the shutters. This ridiculous showing was last made week by the Prohibitory party of Illinois. Let it be set down to the credit of the baker's dozen that they had sense enough not to put out a State ticket.

The Senate has passed the concurrent resolution for counting the electoral vote introduced by Senator Morgan, of lars. Alabama, and it will doubtless be passday prevailed. Upon reassembling, at |ed by the House. The resolution puts the hour named, balloting was prompt- it in the power of Congress to reject the electoral vote of a State in case of fraud and will prevent the trouble in regard to the counting of the Presidential vote

> The curlous workings of the hot wave was well illustrated in New York Friday, when although the thermometer fell as low as 75 degeess, there were still any number of sunstrokes, evidently persons who had been worn down by the heat of the previous two days. The total number of cases of prostration for New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City was twenty-two, and the deaths three. The warm weather caused a heavy increase of the death rate of the city, which sprang up from fifty-six on Monday to 129 on Friday.

For two months and a half yet according to the Duke of Edinburgh, generous help from outside will be needed to ward off wholesale starvation in Ireland. The Duke affirms that the distress there "in the main | penalty not to exceed $1,000. has not been exaggerated." But for the timely relief afforded, he thinks, pletion of the census. The compensation of the terrible scenes of the famine year. He suggests that the fisheries should be reorganized and fostered, in order that the poor peasants of the coast may obtain from the water the food which the sterile land denies

If a delegate can honorably ignore the instructions given him by the power that created him, then an employe who uses his position to steal from the man who trusts him is also an honorable man. Yet to the employment of such ignoble tools were the "respectables" of the Republican party forced, to save it from the control of the majority. It is a pretty comment on the integrity and boasted intelligence of the "God and morality" party. It also proves that they are quite as ready, when necessary to accomplish the ends of faction, to steal from each other, as they are at other times to steal from the people.

To-day (Thursday) the Executive Committee of the 4th Congressional District will to select the time and place for holding the coming Convention. While we do not desire to disparage the claims of other points, and besides having a sneaking desire under other conditions to secure the honor for Ironton, we must confess that Poplar Bluff offers the most natural inducements. It is central, and easily accessible to all parts of the District; and we learn that its hotel accommodations are greatly superior to what they were two years ago, and ample to take in the crowd which will attend the convention. As all of these conditions to not attach to any other claimant, we vote for Poplar Bluff! and hope, for the interest and convenience of the people, the committee may look at the matter as we do.

A good story comes from Chicago through the convention correspondent of the Baltimore Sun: The crowds at the Palmer House evince much curiosity in watching a Georgia colored gentleman by the name of Quarter who is such a delegation. I am a Grant man, but if now practicing law in New York and Mr. Grant is low enough to sanction such who is here in the interest of the Sherman boom. Mr. Quarter is In tow of ex-sheriff Daggett, of Brooklyn, who Missouri. I have done it to elevate my people, is a New York delegate and intends to and I propose to do everything I can to vote for Sherman. Quarter is very black. He wears a blue coat, an open nating a candidate for Judge of the Cir- shirt with a big brilliant pin stuck in cuit Court. And in such convention it, light pants and kid gloves. A sensation was created when he marched into the big dining room of the Palmer House to-night arm-in-arm with Mr. Daggett and took a seat directly oppo-site Mrs. Don Cameron and Mrs. Levi Morton. The guests dropped their knives and forks and started and the colored waiters gathered in groups and watched and chattered, and many stalwart Republicans, to whom such a on such disreputable support, God help the spectacle was rather new, did not express much admiration.

OUR Johnny's Compesitions.

There was a man once who had a house, and he had a fence around it, and he had two gates in the fence. He was a practical man and always wanted his gates shut. He said that was what they was made for. (Now,

Well, the butcher's boy, and the vegetable man's boy, and the milk House, where he was kept from furthboy, and the beer boy, they would come early in the morning and go out before the man's family was up. Of course all of them together and separately would leave one of the gates pretty wide open - maybe both of them. The first thing you know, there would be sixteen cows in the man's yard eating the grass right under the window nearest the man's would be about a dozen mules and colts, (I don't know whether the colts bolonged to the mules or not), eatin' up the roses and honeysuckles and poppies and things. And then there the Republicans that their party has would be about seven large size pigscommonly called hogs-rooting contentedly around in the tulip and hyacinth beds and goblin' a little meal that cost the man about fifty dol-

The man would get up in his dis hability-that is, his bare feet and a collar button—and drive the menagerie tisement which appeared in yesterday's out and shut the gates and offer up a few ejaculations. He figgers up that his milk costs him about a dollar a quart, his mutton thirty cents a pound and his beef is still more costive. In the matter of vegetables he concluded to buy from a New man that didn't have no boy.

Now you see what leaving gates open sometimes generally does. JOHNNY.

Milton Turner on the Rampage.

The Hon. J. Milton Turner, of Misrepresentative colored man, last Thursday evening, at Chicago, carried consternation into the ranks of the Palmer House Grant people. He took a stand near the entrance to the rooms of the National Executive Committee, and, in National Executive Committee, and, in reply to an inquiry as to how the people of Missouri looked upon the proto his pent-up feelings. He unmercifully berated the delegation from his State, and in this connection said:

"I won't support a delegation made up of exconvicts, postoffice refuse, thieves and robbers, such as constitute the Grant delegation from Missouri. They wouldn't give me a seat in the convention because I wouldn't support proceedings I am his superior. I have been a of a tax bill, showing the amount of taxstaunch Republican, and have done everything es now due on said real estate, for the I could since 1870 for the Republican party in years aforesaid, amounting in the agelevate my race, but I propose to do it only by honest measures. Do you expect that honest men will look with favor upon a convention packed with such disreputable characters! I propose that the country shall know who the men are that are going about this city wearing badges inscribed, 'Missouri solid for Grant.' I forswear any fealty to a mob the opportunity to whipsaw the honest Republicans of Missouri. I am a Grant man. but if Gen. Grant and his friends must rely up-

might have given in regard to the disreputable manner in which the solid Grant delegation was elected from his State was cut short by the interference of Maj. Scott of the Sixteenth Battalion, Chicago, who pulled at Mr. Turner, and insisted upon his leaving the hotel. Several gentlemen insisted that Mr. Turner be given an opportunity to exress himself, and for a few minutes a for my part, I don't believe that, for it lively row was in prospect. Scott, asseems to me a gate is made to be sisted by several other fellows, finally pushed Mr. Turner out of the State street entrance, and, followed by a crowed, piloted him to them Clifton

The school board of Tensas parish desires the services of ten teachers for colored schools.

Certainly such a notice as this must be in grateful contrast to the era of strength of colored suffrage and professedly in the interest of the colored people, the public funds were squandered, the schools were dismantled and public education so far as it concerned colored people in the parishes, was a transparent fiction. The colored children were robbed of their school advantages by the party of which they were the dominant element, and the colored people had to content themselves with hollow promises in return for the faithful and unfaltering support upon which that party had its being. Now the change to a frugal and conscientious administration is bearing fruit in the revival of those abandoned institutions, and the colored people have an opportunity of comparing the substantial performances of Democracy with the illusory promises of Radicalism. It would seem that as the race find their interests considered, their rights respected and their privileges preserved James Buford, collector of the revenue to them, they should reconcile them-selves to a change by which they are petition and affidavit; setting forth. large gainers in fact and losers only in
